DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

3. Claims 1 - 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Okubo et al (US 2006/0055377)

Okubo et al discloses having a generator having a driving force generating means (wind turbine 11), electric generating means (generator 19), short circuit means 21 having relays 22, magnitude recognition means (see figure 1), control means 31, and further changing from a short circuit state to a different state based on rotational speed (see paragraphs 0079, 0080 & figures 1, 2).

4. Claims 1 – 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Okubo et al (US 2006/0145668).

Okubo et al discloses a generator system having a generator 11a being driven by wind turbine 2 and having a short circuit device 75, magnitude recognition means 82 and controller 80, 90 and further changing the from a short circuit state to an output state (paragraphs 0013, 0088, 0105) and making such state changes based on the rotational speed (paragraphs 0111 – 0114).

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1 – 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okubo et al (WO 2004/109101).

Okubo et al discloses a generator system having a generator 11a being driven by wind turbine 2 and having a short circuit device 75, magnitude recognition means 82 and controller 80, 90 and further changing the from a short circuit state to an output state and making such state changes based on the rotational speed (see figures 1, 2).

7. Claims 1 – 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okubo et al (WO 2005/040606).

Okubo et al discloses having a generator having a driving force generating means (wind turbine 11), electric generating means (generator 19), short circuit means 21 having relays 22, magnitude recognition means (see figure 1), control means 31, and further changing from a short circuit state to a different state based on rotational speed (see figures 1, 2, abstract).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

9. Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weeks (US 2,118,124) in view of Ito et al (US 2006/0249957).

Weeks discloses a generator 2 being driven by wind turbine 7 and further having short circuit devices (relays 6a-c) for short circuiting the power and changing the mode of the generator (page 2, column 1, lines 10 - 46).

However, Weeks does not disclose using a magnitude recognition device.

On the other hand, Ito et al discloses for the purpose of suppressing charge current effectively in wind power systems, a generator 42 being driven by wind turbine 41 and having magnitude recognition device 48, 50 (see figure 2; paragraph 0055, 0082, 0083). It is further disclosed that the generator is short circuited so as to act as a dynamic braker (see paragraphs 0045-0048, 0107).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design a generator as disclosed by Weeks and to modify the invention by using a magnitude recognition device for the purpose of suppressing charge current effectively in wind power systems as disclosed by Ito et al.
